Democratic Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the Democracy on this evening at the house of Mr. Henneberger, on Green street, between Clay and Hancock. Several candidates will be present to address the people.

MURDER AT WARSAW.—On Tuesday night, James Hendon was shot, and instantly killed, by the bar-room of the Commercial Hotel, at Warrenton, Ore., saw, by Thomas M. Lillard. The testimony before the Grand Jury was, that Lillard had told him that Hendren had told him (L.) should not drink at the same time that he (Lillard) did. During the evening, Hendren came into the bar-room of the Commercial Hotel, and took a drink. Lillard was there, and remarked to a friend, that Hendren had been following him all day, and asked how much longer he (L.) ought to stand it. The friend told Lillard that his father was rich, and that he would not let him do that.

The Grand Jury, which was in session at the time, found a true bill against Lillard for murder. The State was ready to go into trial, and so was the defendant, but Judge Nuttall was not, so the case was continued. Lillard is now in jail.

THEATRE.—Mr. Sullivan's representation of Claude Melnotte, last night, embraced many striking points, and was a personation altogether forthly of thowher he has manifested in other characters. It was good, though not by any means to be compared to his Hamlet, or his Gaius. Miss De Courcy gave a very fair representation of Pauline. She has not phisique enough for the line of characters she undertakes, but does very well, and leaves but little to wish for in her personations. She is very earnest and desirous of pleasing, and we do not wish to be too critical in regard to her efforts.

To-night Mr. Sullivan takes his benefit in "Richeieu," and "Taming the Shrew," two very good points, as every one knows. Miss De Courcy will personate Julie and Catherine. Between

A WATCH STUFFER.—A countryman was victimized yesterday on the Jacob Strader by a distressed individual, who was going as a Madison with his sister, and had not money enough to pay their passage. Greeney, who was going to the same place, kindly advanced Sharp $10 on an elegant watch, with the distinct understanding that he was to sell it for $12 when they arrived at Madison. The watch was worth about $2.50. The victim is probably in Madison by this time, a wiser man. The sharper is probably in this city, and our police headquarters.

For him. From the cut of his jib, he is probably a Chicago worthy traveling for his health, with a small stock of jewelry to bear expenses.

Mr. McLeeland, the tax-collector of the Western District, says that his drawer was broken open last week and tax receipts taken out, but none of them had his signature to them. It is possible, therefore, that the thief will have a hard time if he wants to use them at the coming election. The forging of signatures, at $1.50 each, won't pay. It would have been better to have paid for the receipts. But let there be sharp watch for signatures at the election, for there is no tell-

A gang of counterfeiters has recently been broken up in Essex county, New York. Upon the person of one of the prisoners was found a book containing the rules and regulations of the "Mystic Circle of Alchemy," but principally devoted to an explanation of the processes of galvanism and electrolytropy. It is supposed that the book has been very widely circulated, and many of the most respectable farmers of Essex and the adjoining counties are suspected of having abandoned their honest labor for the manufacture

Some of the "sensation newspapers" in New York have gratified their readers, since the New Sicks tragedy, with portraits of the persons most concerned. An old cut of Piccolomini has, in one instance, done service for Mr. Sicks; in another a picture of Jenny Lind has been put to the same use. Mr. Sicks and Mr. Butterworth have been represented by the pictures of two celebrated murderers. The portrait of Mr. Alfred Bunn, the London manager, has been offered as that of Mr. Key.

HOMOPHATY ABROAD.—At grand Homophaty Fair held in England recently, we should judge from the list of lady patronesses, that homophatry must be a fashionable creed, for it comprised five duchesses, three marchionesses, eleven countesses, six viscountesses, and thirty-one additional ladies of title. Most of these ladies are said to be firm disciples of homophatry, while the rest are classed as "sympathizers," who almost believe in the virtues of the infinitesimal science.

EXPRESS ARRIVES—Daily at 8:10 A. M.; returning arrives at Louisville, at 5:54 P. M. The accommodation leaves daily (Sundays excepted) at 2:54 P. M.; returning, arrives at Louisville at 9:37 A. M. Most trains run through to Green river, and make close connections going South and coming North, at junction, with trains for Lebanon.

The Sickles-Key Affair.
From a letter from Washington to the N. Y. Times respecting the Sickles-Key affair, we extract the following:
The guilty connection of Mr. Key with Mrs. Sickles will, I understand, be admitted to avoid charges injurious to the memory of Mr. Key. The object of the prosecution will be directed to establish that the defendant was a criminal connection excuses the slaying of such a man by the husband's hand, and whether Mr. Key committed the act under the extenuating circumstances of this case. The question of this nature is of value it will be to sustain the prosecution to sustain their side of the case. It is but a short time since that, in the case of John W. Myers, a man from the Navy yard, who was shot by a woman, a jury proceeded to the bed-room of a man from the Navy yard, who was shot by a woman, and sustained a similar injury, and shot him in bed. Public opinion justified, and a jury acquitted him without leaving the box. Again, in the case of John W. Myers, a man from the Navy yard, a young man from near the Navy Yard, on the seducer of his sister and demanded the repayment of a marriage for the injured girl, and a jury refused to acquit him. Public opinion justified, and a jury acquitted him.

not leaving the box. Nor are these precedents confined to this country. Lord Napier has said it as his belief that in England, if the criminal connection be of the character stated, no jury would be found to convict the husband.

In France precedent of recent origin are not wanting. In 1890 a M. _____ received an anonymous communication informing him that a certain M. Cottegion was in the habit of entering his wife's apartment from a balcony common to several houses. M. Naraby lay in wait, and surprised M. Cottegion in the attempt, an encounter took place, from which the seducer managed to escape. M. Naraby seizing a pistol followed him, and meeting on the stairs, not M. Cottegion, but respondent of the London News, who had been visiting a friend in the same house, fired at him in his extreme rage, and shot him through the jaw. The case was tried before one of the jurists of France, the father of the Comte de Lariboisiere, now Secretary of the French Legation in Washington, and the jury acquitted M. Rabary, condemning M. Cottellegon, the adulterer, to pay 500 francs of damages to the innocent person whom the enraged husband had wounded. And a little more than a year ago, when a lady of rank in one of the provinces requested an old attached family servant to shoot a scoundrel who had boasted of seducing her daughter, and deceased was actually done, a French jury acquitted both the injured mother and the gardener, and adopted her injury as his own. But the French are not so merciful as these—only was his home dishonored, but that disaster was inflicted with a reckless disregard of decency, which had made the disgrace the common talk of the city. Not in a moment of hot passion, when the rebellious blood might override the better feelings, was the deep wrong done, a house was coolly bired for the basest uses which it could be put, and Mr. Sickle's wife aged and grayed in the bitter hours of infamy to satisfy the strongest instincts of degraded humanity. And when this dishonor, this repeated, reiterated dishonor was made clear to him; clear by the unanswerable proof; clear by the confession of his wife; and amid the grief and agony which horrid discovery brought upon his home, the husband saw opposite to his window the man who had desolated that home, and who had ruined the future of his child, daunting, as it were, in his face, and, with a sign that implied his desire to infang—how many men, claiming the moral superiority over their fellows, will do that, at such a moment—as a cold-blooded duellist in some New York evening paper lays down—Mr. Sickles should have taken seat to study the code of the duello, and ascertain how Mr. Key was to be got rid of, according to the strict letter of its laws; or, as another punctilious gentleman opionizes, write to Mr. Key, and politely request him to leave the city. But no, and, then calmly bring him down the first time they met! It seems to be forgotten that when, at that moment of fear, Mr. Sickles rushed out

Mr. Barton Key, he staked his own life, too—s true Mr. Key was unarmed. But how was Sickles to know this? Few men in Washington go so unarmed, and Mr. Key had received the Thursday before a letter warning him of danger of discovery, and of the risks involved in it. He was, therefore, Mr. Sickles' friend, and was to put his hand to the pocket where arms usually carried. Any student of the human heart and its passions who looks on the story of this tragedy from the moment when Mr. Key received his signal in front of Sickles' house, to that which he fell on Lafayette square, must see that in that time Sickles thought and dreamed of consequences to himself and of the code of the duello.

When, late in spring, the attentions of Mr. Key to Mrs. Key became the subject of remark and scandal, Sickles instantly, on the first whisper reaching his ears, called upon that gentleman and removed him from any asserations of the honorable character of his regard, so solemn and so strong, that, coupled with those of his wife, he could not, and did not for a moment, after, cherish a suspicion. Mr. Key went so far as to seal his assurance by bringing him to the residence of Mrs. Sickles, which Mr. Sickles had a right to, and was a complete guarantee of the purity of his own relations with her. Still desiring his wife to be not only safe from, but above suspicion, he forbade her to receive Mr. Key except when invited, and on her regular reception day, the presence of company, a restraint which she both submitted to and observed. The result of this policy, which induced Mr. Key to leave the city of New York, was, that no further course of assination, not in any instance, was has Mr. Sickle's been allowed either to go a dinner party or ball except in his own company. The one exception was the fancy ball of Mrs. Gwin, when, on her mother's representation that her absence might give a color of reality to what but wore the shape of fiction, he permitted her to attend. But Mr. Sickle's presence was hardly a place between Mr. May and Mrs. Sickle since then, have been in his absence at Congress or out of town, at the house which Mr. May rented for the purpose. Had Mr. Sickle's used any severer restraint, those who are now ready to accuse him of laxity of vigilance, would be the first to brand him as a domestic tyrant, serving and provoking by his harshness the crime he met.

The letter of warning which Mr. Key received from the committee, with his answer to Mr.

cles at the ball at Willard's on that night—their meeting—was written, it is thought, in a lady. It was full of "Dear Barton," and very such endearing expressions, whereas the letter which conveyed to Mr. Sickles the intimacies and proofs of his dishonor, was either written, or feigned to be written, by some coarse, tart person. Strange, if two different parties could have selected the same night to send a letter of warning.

Mexico.

We have details of news from Vera Cruz to Feb. 1. This intelligence is of course superseded partly by the dispatch given on Monday from the newscast at New Orleans.

Gen. Miramon was at that date hourly expected

Veracruz. He was accompanied in his march Gen. Robles as chief of his staff. Letters from private sources indicated the probability of the fate of the place being decided by the 6th inst. Gen. Iglesias, who commands the troops in Veracruz, had issued a proclamation declaring martial law, and subjecting those who dared to communicate with the enemy to the severest penalties. The Consular residences of the city were crowded with refugees, while hosts of others had left the place.

On the 23d of February, the American steamer Esperanza left Veracruz for Alvarado, with about a hundred passengers mostly ladies.

Alvarado has been strongly fortified within the last month, with large brass cannon and mortars taken from the Castle of San Juan de Ulloa.

Two schooners freighted with powder and ball, were also dispatched to that place; also, a steamer to Tampico.

A large body of Liberals from the capital had arrived at Vera Cruz.

It was stated that a formidable conspiracy, in a conservative interest, had been discovered in Guerrero, giving Gen. Alvarez great trouble, and taining him from lending any assistance to President Juarez.

Advices from Merida, Yucatan, are to Feb. 23, of a conspiracy in favor of the moderados had been discovered in the capital. A soldier betrayed the plot, and the leading participants were arrested.

The war against the Indians was prosecuted with the utmost ferocity, and was met with equal ferocity. Numerous ranches had been burned,

Tragedy in St. Louis.
St. Louis, March 16.—A young man named Max Hamilton, a butcher by occupation, shot his wife this afternoon, and then shot himself.
The domestic difficulties and jealousy—the last understood to be unfounded. He had been married but four months, and was induced to doubt the loyalty of his wife from representations made to him by his two brothers, who had, for some known reasons, conceived a dislike to her.
She is eighteen years old and the husband twenty-three. Hamilton will die, but his wife will recover, though desperately wounded.

The Dayton (O.) Gazette says that the scarlet fever is prevailing to an alarming extent, at Miamisburg, Carrollton, and the region around those places. One gentleman has lost five children, out of a family of six, and another four on the same number. Five burials took place at Miamisburg on Monday, four of the deceased being died of the fever.

FATAL AFFRAY.—We learn that an affray occurred at West Point on Monday last, between Noah Hlox and William Check, in which the latter was wounded. It is supposed mortally, by a pistol shot fired by the former. We did not learn the particulars further than that Check was drunk, and at Wilcox had been arrested. Sticks & stones Democrat, March 15th.

Track-laying on the main stem of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad will be commenced at this place to-morrow. We understand that two barge loads of iron were received to-day sufficient, we are told, to lay eight miles of the track.—Bottling Green Gas.

BY TELEGRAPH.

From Louisville, Ky., March 17.—The Times of this city, publishes an account of an affray at Halters, Brown county, growing out of a political meeting, resulting in the wounding of several persons, one dangerously. During the meeting, which was in pursuance of a call to organize the Republican party, a disturbance was manifested by persons politically opposed to it to break it up.
At the close, a general melee ensued, in which the participants were afterwards adopted ordering the participants in the affray to leave the city under a penalty of death, and a company was organized to carry the same into effect.
Judge Halton, Probate Judge of Hamilton county, is reported to be severely wounded.

A man named Walsh arrived yesterday from Denver City, twenty-two days out, via the Smoky Hill route, on the road to the coast, with engines proceeding in every imaginable conveyance.
Mr. Walsh brings $400 in gold dust, which was dug in twenty days.

BALTIMORE, March 17.—Hicks in repeating Cromps, Gambrell, Corrie, and Cyphus, and delaying their execution till April 26, warns them not to expect any further delay in the execution of the sentence of death.

Arrival of the Overland Mail.
St. Louis, March 17.—The Overland California mail, with dates to the 21st ult., arrived here last night, bringing two days later news, which is of no general importance.

Death of Prof. Emeritus.
CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 17.—Thomas Emeritus professor of surgery, of the Jefferson College, Philadelphia, died at the Mills home in this city
last night.

Murdered.
New York, March 17.—The dead body of Mike Walsh, ex-member of Congress, was found in the city, being on Eighth Avenue, this morning.
He had been robbed and then murdered.

River and Weather.
Pittsburgh, March 17.—River nine feet six inches by the river mark and falling. Weather cloudy and mild.

Arrived—Pittsburgh and New York. Departed—Pittsburgh and New York.

CINCINNATI, March 17.—River falling slowly.
Weather cloudy and cool. Some light rain this morning.

LOUIS, March 17.—The river continues to flow slowly. Nothing new from the upper streams; all are in good boating order. Weather
